Environmental, Health, & Civic Literacy

We built eight raised-bed gardens. The entire project, from construction and maintenance, to the cross-curricular lessons that were implemented, was student-designed and driven. Teachers have acted as facilitators, but students designed and created the gardens and will learn through investigation and hands-on experiences.

- Teachers will increase student engagement in the classroom.
- Students will develop a sense of pride back in the school and being a proud member of it.
- This project enables our teachers to take the classroom outside
