Lighthouse High School principals visited Columbus North High School in Columbus, Indiana and Chavez High School, in Houston, Texas in order to observe classrooms and meets with administrators involved in a similar transformation to a learner centered environment in a high school. These visits exposed principals to a multiyear professional learning plan with job embedded professional development and teacher and administrator professional learning communities.

- Ensure a learner-centered, personalized, blended environment powered by digital learning and interactive curriculum access that is accessible anytime and anywhere, and
- Develop, implement, and expand a digital platform for curriculum development and delivery that widens teachers' access to methods and materials that reach diverse learners and provides flexible access for staff, students, and parents.
